

Madgwicks Partner appointed to board of Urban Renewal Authority

Victorian Planning Minister Matthew Guy today announced the appointment of the board of directors for the Urban Renewal Authority, formerly VicUrban. The board includes Madgwicks Partner Lorna Gelbert and Ken Fehily from Fehily Advisory who has been appointed Deputy Chairman.

“I welcome the new Board members who have been selected for their diversity of commercial experience, skills and knowledge that will be integral to leading the Authority and ensuring it delivers on its urban renewal mandate,” Mr Guy said in a media release.

Mr Guy said the new board will lead the Authority in developing its business operations to deliver on its mandate to facilitate urban renewal outcomes across Victoria.

Lorna is a partner in the firm’s Property practice group and has over 30 years experience advising on a wide range of property matters. Lorna regularly provides legal advice to property trusts and developers on major transactions including the acquisition, disposal and development of substantial commercial property assets across a number of states. Lorna is a Law Institute of Victoria Accredited Property Law Specialist and chairs the Specialisation Board’s Property Specialisation Advisory Committee.

Ken is the principal of Fehily Advisory and is one of Australia’s leading experts in the field of indirect tax. He has advised many of Australia’s largest companies, privately owned businesses and Government agencies, and has been appointed to numerous Federal Government GST advisory committees. Ken is qualified as a Chartered Accountant, CPA, Registered Tax Agent and Fellow of the Taxation Institute of Australia.

Madgwicks’ has an alliance with Fehily Advisory which provide clients with a seamless commercial and innovative solution for all of their taxation needs.
